Welcome to Night Vale. Serial. Stuff You Missed in History Class...

Over the past decade, podcasts have exploded in popularity. They are perfect for passing the time and hearing about new ideas. You can find podcasts from celebrities, influencers, commentators, writers…and Monmouth County teens like you! Yes, you can start your own podcast!

This interactive, hands-on, in-person, limited-attendance program for individuals in Grades 6 through 12 will introduce you to the basics of putting together a podcast, over the course of two sessions. Both will be held at the Holmdel Branch of Monmouth County Library.

No prior podcasting experience necessary; a laptop and microphone will be provided to each participant during the sessions.

This is an in-person, indoor program; masks are recommended for all participants, regardless of vaccination status. Thanks for respecting social distance and helping to keep yourself and others safe!

Session One: March 9 - Explore the technical side of podcasting—particularly recording and editing—and get first-hand experience with manipulating audio in the widely-used program Audacity.

Session Two: March 16 – Get creative with podcasting—topic, format, distribution, logistics and more. Each participant will leave with a fully formed pitch for their own podcast.

Presenter Eden Biskin (they/them), ML, is a Technology Librarian at Monmouth County Library. They have been contributing to the popular Legend of Zelda-centric gaming podcast ZUCast since they were 14, and they currently serve as the executive producer overseeing a team of volunteers from around the world throughout the production cycle. Eden has been recording and playing with audio for fun since tape recorders were a thing.
